POLISH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Polish non-preferential Certificates of Origin in a digital format - Benefits

The Polish Chamber of Commerce (PCC) is pleased to inform you that non-preferential Certificates of Origin (hereinafter referred to as "certificates") are now being issued in digital format.

To meet the expectations of international trade partners, we have launched the online platform co.kig.pl, which enables exporters to apply for and receive digital certificates, while importers can instantly verify their authenticity online.

Benefits of digital Polish Certificates of Origin:

Security:

- Each certificate is secured with the electronic signature of the Polish Chamber of Commerce.
- Authenticity can be verified online at co.kig.pl/verify.
- Certificates will also be available for verification in the global database maintained by the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC).
- The system complies with the highest digital security standards, confirmed by an independent audit.

Convenience:

- We enhance economic efficiency – electronic documents can be delivered instantly worldwide.
- All procedures are carried out fully online.
- Reduced waiting time from application to issuance.
- Significantly minimized use of paper documentation.

If a foreign party requires a physical certificate, exporters can conveniently request and obtain a paper version.

Transparency:

- A complete audit trail is maintained for each certificate to ensure full accountability.
- The PCC operates in accordance with international regulations, standards, and best practices, in cooperation with chambers of commerce in Poland and around the world. These established standards provide a secure and reliable framework for exporters and importers engaged in international trade.

For your reference, we have attached a sample electronic certificate and additional information, which is also available at <https://swiadectwapochodzenia.kig.pl/>.

Case study 1: Customs administration

🚩 Goal:

Allow only checked goods with known origin to enter the market. Block embargo evasion and price dumping.

Show more...

! Problem:

The authenticity of paper certificates of origin is verified after the goods have entered the market:

1. Goods enter the country accompanied by a paper certificate of origin and are sold.
2. After some time, the tax administration reviews the import documentation.
3. A request for verification of the paper document is sent to the PCC or to Polish customs authorities.
4. We verify the paper documentation.
5. We send a response (one of two options) to the customs authorities of the importing country:

OPTION 1: The document is authentic.
What next? The inspection ends.

OPTION 2: The document is forged.
What next? Goods of unknown origin have entered the market. Anti-dumping duties, sanctions, or embargoes may have been circumvented. The state administration must resolve the situation. Consumer protection authorities order the importer to withdraw the product from the market and impose penalties. The tax authorities impose fines on the importer.

📦 Solution:

Require electronic certificates of origin. Verify authenticity immediately before the goods enter the country. Full control. No risk.

Case study 2: Importer

🚩 Goal:

Conduct international trade efficiently and securely.

! Problem:

My goods are being held at the border due to the need to verify the authenticity of paper certificates of origin:

1. The shipment is stopped at the border by the customs authorities of the importing country.
2. Customs officers suspect the document may be forged or the origin of the goods is not acceptable.
3. A request for verification of the paper document is sent to the PCC or to Polish customs authorities.
4. We verify the paper documentation.
5. We send a response (one of two options) to the customs authorities of the importing country:

OPTION 1: The document is authentic.

What next? The goods are released and continue on their way. However, they may have spent anywhere from a few days to several weeks at the border. This may result in additional warehousing fees or losses, especially for perishable goods.

OPTION 2: The document is forged.

What next? The goods are rejected and returned. This causes losses for both the importer and the exporter.

There is also a risk of penalties.

📦 Solution:

Ask your trading partner for an electronic certificate of origin. Verify it before shipment. Faster, more reliable, and risk-free.
